

Davis Views Chamber Halt

Mr. Robert Strong
Crawford County Avalanche
Grayling, Michigan
Dear Bob:

I noticed with intense regret that the Grayling Chamber of Commerce has apparently given up the struggle. It is altogether too true that many of the chamber of commerce's activities are of great value, but are rather thankless for the individuals concerned. Basically, however, if there is pride in a community, and I know there is in Grayling, persons that carry on the activities of the chamber of commerce and donate their time and effort to it do it because of their own personal self-satisfaction in the realization that they are contributing something constructive to the life of the community.

Jerome Kesseler's report is an excellent analysis of the values of the chamber of commerce, but many of the values cannot be analyzed in the budget. For example, in many cases through the cooperation of the chamber and various members there, Grayling has been able to obtain many thousands of dollars of free publicity which boosts their community. We have called on the chamber many times for assistance in putting across a news story or a magazine article; they have never failed to take advantage of the offer.

I think it is important for the people of Grayling to remember that their chamber of commerce spends very little money for overhead. Almost everything that is contributed to it goes into promotional activities to build a bigger tourist business for Grayling, and few other larger chambers of commerce get that type of results. In most chambers of commerce 68% of their budget goes toward salaries and overhead. So, actually, Grayling's chamber of commerce budget is much more effective in proportion.

It is very probable that those that did not attend the meeting or resigned, did so for legitimate reasons. Perhaps some of them did not attend because of lack of interest. However, I am sure that there are enough civic minded people in Grayling to carry on a successful chamber of commerce in the event it is reorganized. If it is felt that there ought to be a new approach to reorganizing a chamber of commerce, I would be very happy to call a meeting here in Bay City and bring in a number of successful chambers of commerce executives to advise any of the local folks that are interested in the efficient operation of a chamber of commerce.

Yours sincerely,
Frank Davis
Secretary-Manager

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Barber announce the engagement of their daughter Beverly Lou to Donald Martin Peterson of Houghton Lake, Michigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson.

The wedding will take place in early spring.

WHERE WILL IT END?

Never before have Michigan fields and forests seen such invasions of hunters. Never before have our lakes and streams been so whipped with the cast of fishing lines. Each year brings a big jump in the sale of fishing and hunting licenses. Where will it end, and what effect will it have on fishing and hunting in Michigan Outdoors?

The answer, according to the experts, is less fish and game per person, while the total lake remains about the same. This, however, presents a few problems in game and fish management. Naturally you might expect that 100 fishermen on a given lake will take twice as many fish as 50, providing their abilities are about equal, and the supply of fish remains adequate.

Supply Unstable
Eventually, however, the harvest will level off to a point where each of the anglers will have to be content with a smaller catch, because the supply is definitely not inexhaustible. The same will be true in the hunting field, and it is possible that before too many moons, have passed we will have to take stock of the situation and reduce our bag limits on some fish and game.

There's certainly no cause for

Hunters Look Ahead To "Any" Deer Season, November 28 - 30

Crossed fingers are the high signs as Michigan's first large-scale "any deer" season draws near.

Hunters and game technicians are hoping for the best while half-way expecting the worst.

The "any deer" season means just what the term implies. During the last three days of the regular season, November 28-30 inclusive, hunters can take any deer in the north half of the lower peninsula.

Bucks, does, even fawns — all will be legal targets.

It's a drastic measure designed to make a bad condition better. The bad condition is the demonstrable fact that there are too many deer in large areas — even whole counties — in the lower peninsula deer range.

The consequence has been that many thousands of deer — an estimated 40,000 in one recent winter — have starved.

The condition isn't something that has come about overnight. It has been building up over a pe-

To Rebuild Park's Tows

The Grayling Winter Sports Committee meeting last Friday night decided to rebuild the two ski tows at the Grayling Winter Sports Park and to add one more new tow.

The decision was reached after the group's president Grover Cason offered a detailed drawing showing how the ski tows could be constructed from steel instead of with wood as they now are. If the committee will furnish the material, the actual construction of the tows will be handled by the Conservation Department with labor from Camp Lehman.

The main front tow will also be lengthened in order to bring the tow line further downhill near the site of the new warming house. The new tow will be constructed on the back hill giving the skiers at the Grayling Park almost double the skiing area which they have had in the past.

The committee felt the expense was necessary from the standpoint of improving the skiing facilities at the park. The two present tows were in bad shape and would have presented a problem to park management if they were not rebuilt, it was said.

alarms, nor should there be any great regret among true sportsmen when and if this happens. In the final analysis the meat we bring home is far less important than the wholesome, healthful experience of finding relaxation in Michigan Outdoors.

New Horizons

The process of making a living in modern America is a hectic one, draining energy at a high rate from the average man. If he's a sportsman he's discovered relief from the pressures of everyday life in his contact with the outdoors. He knows that a day on his favorite lake, or afield with dog and gun, erases the worries that beset him—strengthen him to do a better job in life. New horizons appear. New appreciations of nature at work belittle the petty annoyances of the workaday world.

No man ever spent a day fishing or hunting but what he was the better for it. And the killing of fish or game has little or nothing to do with this effect. So, in the years to come if we face the possibility of fewer fish in the creek—maybe one pleasant day instead of two for the hunter, a lot going to hurt most of us. We'll still have all of Michigan Outdoors — and there's plenty of that to go around!

NEW FALL TIME

Meet Neff's "Michigan Outdoors" television show may be seen every Thursday at 7:00 p.m. on stations WWJ-TV, Detroit and WJIM-TV, Lansing.

Cunningham's Log House Destroyed By Fire

The old log house at Cunningham's Lodge at McMaster's Bridge in South Branch Township was completely destroyed by fire on the afternoon of November 18. The Grayling Fire Department was called but the lodge is over 20 miles from Grayling and worse luck the fire truck suffered a blow out enroute.

According to Fire Chief Middle LaMotte the damage was estimated at $1,200.00. A spark from a wood stove apparently caused the fire.

Kiwanis Club Notes

Rev. Herbert Sebree, formerly Grayling minister and secretary of the Kiwanis Club of Grayling was the speaker at Monday night's meeting of the club. Although he was not present at the meeting, he still brought a message for Thanksgiving Day to the members.

This was accomplished by the use of a wire recorder. Rev. Sebree who is now administering to a parish in southern Wisconsin, was sent a wire recording of a Kiwanis meeting some time ago. That meeting was arranged by Floyd Davis who mailed the wire recording to Rev. Sebree. He then in turn cut a new recording and sent it back to be used at the meeting preceding Thanksgiving.

He first told of his new church, his success there and of the southern Wisconsin countryside. Following this opening he then gave an excellent talk on the start and meaning of Thanksgiving Day. The program was much enjoyed by the club members.

City Manager Addresses High School Group

Mr. Max Davenport, Grayling City Manager, spoke to the sociology class, on city management on Nov. 25. He told of the many problems of the city which must be solved. He explained the difference between our type of city government and that type run by a mayor and pointed out the advantages of our type.

The class enjoyed it very much and wish to thank Mr. Davenport for coming.

In the midst of every deer season, there is a group of Michigan hunters who decry the annual slaughter of the deer. While they have a valid criticism of the needless human deaths

The Meaning of The Election

General Eisenhower's landslide victory, in the face of all the political advantages held by a party which had been in power for 20 years, was a remarkable expression of the faith of his fellowcitizens have in him. It also was much more than that. It was a clear cut demand by the American people for a return to certain simple, fundamental ideas—ideas which the President-elect emphasized time and time again during the campaign.

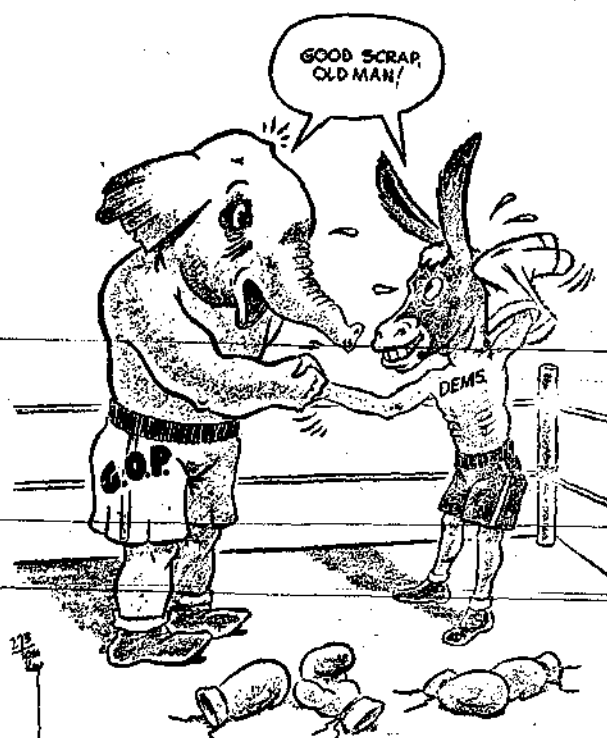

The Democrats put their best foot forward. Governor Stevenson is an admirable and attractive figure, who lost with honor. It is hoped that he will continue to devote his high abilities to the public service. But, unavoidably, he was the inheritor of a philosophy of government which the election vigorously disavowed.

That philosophy holds that it is the duty of government to provide the people with alleged "security" from the cradle to the grave. It holds that, in various fields, it is proper for the government to go into commercial business to the partial exclusion of free enterprise, which is socialism. It is a philosophy that must forever result in greater and greater taxation, and more and more waste and extravagance and corruption, regardless of how high-minded the men at the top may be. Most important of all, it is a philosophy that must result in less and less freedom and opportunity for enterprise and individuals alike.

It is said that President-elect Eisenhower offered copy-book maxims. Whatever they may be called, those maxims have been the source of this nation's strength, freedom, and spiritual and material progress. The President-elect did not hesitate to passionately assert his faith in thrift, honesty, the dignity and responsibility of the individual, the rights and obligations of the states, the vigor of a free enterprise economy—nor to point to the menace of super-government. These were the principles he stood for—these are the principles the American people endorsed on November 4, and on which this nation was founded.

Interesting Meeting

Despite the fact that attendance was somewhat small due to the reason that the second regular monthly meeting fell on the third day of deer season, those present had an enjoyable session. The Fr. John J. Reiss council is composed of members from Prudenville, Roscommon and Grayling so all regular meetings are held at Roscommon in the St. Michael's Church Basement hall.

A ladies night was planned for December 15th, at which time the men will treat them to a venison supper to be followed by a program of varied entertainment.

An invitation from the Carson City council to a banquet honoring State Deputy, Thomas Cavanaugh, a member of that council, was read and reservation made for those wishing to attend.

A feature of all meetings is a discussion period on timely topics of a religious nature. At this meeting the subject was the moral aspect of penal law.

A report was given by the committee conducting the tagging of voters in the last election. As part of their patriotic activity, the council purchased a quantity of tags in patriotic colors and bearing the inscription, "I Have Voted Have You" in an effort to make our citizens more conscious of their duties and rights as citizens of a free country, especially in contrast to the communistic dominated ones. A canvas was conducted by the committee to find the reaction of the public. They were very heartened by such comment as, "it was a swell idea" "It was a very worthwhile action" "I believe it did serve as a

Michigan Mirror

that occur from carelessness or accident, they seem to devote much of their denunciations to the "cruelty" of killing poor dumb animals.

Now rises George A. Petrides of the department of fisheries and wild life at Michigan State College.

"Wild game is a crop," he contends. "It should be harvested."

In fact, he makes a strong case for the humanitarian aspects of hunting. "Every spring the breeding pheasants, quail, grouse, turkeys, ducks, geese, rabbits, squirrels and deer begin to raise families," he points out. "These young animals grow up during the warm months when food and weather are kind."

"By the time Autumn comes, the original Spring population of wild game has increased manyfold."

"But what is to happen to these animals? Are they to live happily through the winter and in turn all raise more families in the Spring? In order to protect the species, only the hardest are chosen to live to Spring. The surplus animals are lost to starvation, freezing, predators or disease."

This is a wasteful process, charges Petrides. "Thousands of animals die every year," he points out, "and death by starvation or freezing is a cruel death."

There is nothing cruel about hunting, he contends. "As grains and fruits, timber and beef are harvested as gifts of nature, so the harvest of game is given us. Man lives by nature's laws; he lives or he dies according to whether he wisely uses the gifts, the resources given him."

"The wise use of the game crop definitely includes the understanding that it should be harvested. As a renewable resource under proper management, the wildlife of America can always be with us and our children and their off spring."

Just how valuable a resource Michigan game is is illustrated by some figures compiled by Charles Shick of MSC's department of conservation.

The value of Michigan's fur crop last year was greater than $2 million. Rye crops that year were worth $1.38 million. Seventy-six hundred tons of wild meat went on Michigan tables in '31. Its value was more than $10 million (sugar beets in '31 totalled $7 million) and it would provide food for a whole year for over 21,000 families of four persons each.

The cash value of fur and meat taken from Michigan woods last year was $12 million, enough to purchase a thousand average-sized homes at today's prices.

Hunting provides another great economic factor in Michigan life—the money spent by hunters and their parties.

There were 700,000 small game hunters, 400,000 deer hunters and 20,000 trappers. To that can be added the great army of tourists, picnickers, naturalists and photographers who simply enjoy seeing wild birds and animals.

Michigan farms can be mighty dangerous.

In the first eight months of this year, 5 people were killed in farm accidents. There were 603 serious mishaps and 14 persons were permanently disabled by them.

A hundred eighty-two were using unsafe methods; 9 didn't use safety devices which were available; 191 were hurrying so they grew careless and 3 were too tired to take proper care.

Farm homes aren't the havens we dream of them as. A hundred fifty-eight serious accidents occurred in rural homes; 270 at farm work.

While Houston and New Orleans have been waging a Deep South battle for the honor of being America's second largest port, Michigan just quietly ups and walks away with the title for the third straight month.

It was Detroit that brought the honor to our state. It handled dollar volume of imports and exports second only to New York City.

During the first six months of this year, imports entering this country through the Motor City port were 1,435% greater than in 1931. Exports traded at that same period increased 1,132%.

It's probably no accident that the 21 largest cities in the United States are located on navigable waters.

More Michiganders vacation in Florida than in any other state—except their own. It's been estimated that over 200,000 from Michigan visited Florida last year.

Look for demand upon the Michigan Legislature to revise that law which whacks up the cost of railroad grade separation.

Typical is a Detroit case where 12 such grade separations are proposed. The five railroads involved would be assessed a total of $2.94 million compared to the public's cost of $16.66 million.

The Detroit Times puts the argument in a nutshell: "The taxpayer can't understand why he should pay huge amounts to keep out of the trains' way. It would seem more logical that the railroads pay the cost of keeping out of the taxpayers' way."

A Michigan survey shows that the average allowance for high school youngsters is $2 to $3 per week. It also shows that inflation-rates for baby sitting and other teen age chores brings an average income of almost $10.

Michigan's Isle Royal is the only national park which cannot be reached by automobile.

The National Parks Services of the U. S. Department of Interior has just announced that 96.5% of all visitors to national parks travel there by auto.

Isle Royal's 2,370 visitors in 1931 came by boat and plane. That number is the smallest of any national park; even Alaska's Mt. McKinley had 8,634. Then comes Big Bend in Texas with 82,956 and after that all parks number visitors in six figures.

You could drive the distance around the world four times and without getting off a Michigan road or backtracking as much as a city block. Michigan has a total of 106,896 miles of roads and streets.

Of this, 92,756 is rural; 14,137 urban and 80,892 miles are surfaced.

The average Michigan farmer drives six miles to his favorite shopping center.
